Some of the peculiar traits of the Kurds of Asia Minor are described by a traveler: "If it were possible to im agine two colors more distinct than black and white it would be possible to imagine two characters more ly differing than those of the Arab and Kurd. The pure Kurd is the most unsophisticated and gullible person in the world so long as you keep away from the material issues. His respect for a man who can read and write is almost pitiable. The Kurds are on the whole blunt and somewhat uncouth silent and quite incapable of false hood. If they do wrong-and they of ten do-they admit the fault in the simplest and most unaffected way. I had a muleteer who was honest, civil and incorrigibly idle. 'Did you ever kill a man?' I asked him one day. Yes: sixteen on the Khazat road when I was a deserter from the army,

No Chesterfield.

"Lord Dunmore," he said, "was a good man. Tall and robust and supple. I can see him still with his shor gray beard and his kind face. His only fault-a fault due to his aristocratic upbringing, no doubt-was the exaggerated value that he set upon correct ness. He insisted in correctness in eat as he called him. This man was dress ing one night to go out. His wife bustied into the room before he started to 'But, George,' she said reproach-

What's the use?' George growled. 'My napkin would hide 'em anyway.' "-New Orleans States.

Mr. Travers, the famous New York wit, once met at dinner a pompou States. He had letters a-plenty attest ing his importance-letters from Glad stone, Dilke, Salisbury and Churchill. He had talked everybody tired before the dinner began, and Travers say visions of a bad meal when he discovered the Englishman to be his neighbor at the table. There was never a stop in the fellow's tongue. When the oysters were brought on he be "Now, it is a question as to whether or not the oyster has brains. Scientists dispute the idea." "T-t-t-they certainly have some," retorted Travers "Your proof, sir!" challenged the Brit-
